Pad Thai Noodles

with prawns and tofu

Ingredients:

Rice noodles | Chilli & garlic oil | Prawns | Tofu | Beaten egg
Pad Thai sauce | Peanuts | Fried shallots | Spring onions | Coriander

Cooking Instructions:

Boil a large pan of water and cook half the pack of noodles for 3 minutes, turn off the heat and leave in the water, they will continue to cook.

Open the tofu, drain and cut half the pack into 2.5cm pieces.

You can enjoy the rest of the noodles and tofu at a later date.

Finely chop the coriander and spring onions (including some of the green tops).

Crush the peanuts with a rolling pin and set aside until serving.

Heat the chilli & garlic oil in a wok or large pan over a high heat, add the prawns and tofu. Cook for 2–3 minutes until the prawns turn pink and are just cooked.

Add the beaten egg and stir fry until it starts to scramble. Lower the heat, drain the noodles and add to the pan, add the Pad Thai sauce and cook for a further 2 minutes.

Add half the crushed peanuts, half the spring onion and the coriander and heat through for 1 minute.

Serve in 2 bowls and finish with the remaining spring onion, fried shallots and crushed peanuts.

I think a Pad Thai should be sweet but not too sweet, tart and dry but not too dry. And above all, the noodles should still have a little bit of bite to them, just like pasta, and some spring onions should be thrown on top at the last minute. Then you're in danger of falling into an eating frenzy.
